DINNER · FOR PRIVATE MEMBERS' CLUBS

One table. Your members.

The kitchen cooks the dinner. We write everything that happens around the table — for one member and the guests — and cast the room with actors.

— One table of eight. Four to twelve if the room allows.

— In your own room with your kitchen — or in a restaurant we arrange.

— The member who hosts knows. The guests do not — until the last course.

WHAT THE CLUB RECEIVES

— An evening your members cannot book anywhere else

— A reason for members to bring guests — and to talk about the club afterwards

— In your room, or in a restaurant we arrange — you book nothing

— One briefing for your staff. Our team runs the evening

— One figure for everything, agreed before we write a line

WHAT YOUR MEMBERS RECEIVE

— A dinner written for their table alone — never staged before, never repeated

— The whole room cast: maître d', sommelier, waiters, the next table

— Guests who suspect nothing until the last course

— An evening the table retells for years

— One record of the evening, in one copy

FOUR STEPS

1

Talk to us.

Twenty minutes with the club.

2

Read one page.

The evening, the cast, the room. Change anything you like.

3

Do nothing.

Two to eight weeks: we write, cast and rehearse.

4

The evening.

One room, one table.

> "Teleport instantly understood my vision, and together we teleported an entire conference through a couple of major structural changes — with a resounding success."
