PROPOSAL

The whole city knows the question.

The question takes a whole day to ask. She is the last to know.

— One day. The question takes all of it.

— The places she walks every week.

— Everyone she meets is in on it. She is the last to know.

WHAT YOU RECEIVE, AND WHEN

Within two days	A first conversation. Who she is, where she walks, what makes her laugh.
Within a week	The day on one page, with the cast and the places.
Two to eight weeks	We write and rehearse. Nobody around her needs to know.
The day before	The envelope: time, place, one line to say.
After	One record of the day, in one copy. Nothing filmed unless you ask.

IN THEIR WORDS

"It took me almost a year to fully process all the emotions, and I will carry the memories of that day with me for the rest of my life."

Jennifer Klingvall Gillberg
— the one the day was written for
