A story that leaves the shore.

A private day on the water, written in advance. Your yacht, or one we introduce — and a crew who know the plot.

— About eight hours, cast-off to the last line.

— Your yacht — or one we introduce.

— A real skipper. A written crew.

WHAT YOU RECEIVE, AND WHEN

Within two days	A first conversation: who she is, who comes aboard, what the water means to her.
Within a week	The day on one page: the route, five scenes, the vessel.
Two to eight weeks	We write and rehearse. We come aboard once before the day and meet the crew.
The week before	Sailing orders, by post: the berth, the time, what to wear.
After	The ship's log — the only record of the day, in one copy, written by hand and signed by the skipper.

IN THEIR WORDS

"For all of you being involved this weekend, it has been pure magic."
